MOB REACTION TO BE GIVEN GEORGIA TEST

2 Accused Killers To Be Publicly Returned to Scene of Crime.

By The United Press

REIDSVILLE, Ga., March 6—Two accused killers, whisked away to the state penitentiary for safe-keeping after their capture, will be returned to the scene of their crime publicly and under only limited guard today to prove "there is no danger of mob violence" in Georgia.

In a bold move to counteract President Truman's demands for anti-lynch legislation, Gov. M. E. Thompson ordered the men returned to the aroused town of Swainsboro where they are accused of shooting to death an agent of the Georgia bureau of investigation.

Emanuel county sheriff P. L. Youmans of Swainsboro sent only two cars of deputies to the penitentiary to pick up the Tennessee desperadoes and their women at 10 a. m. today.

Youmans said he would follow the governor's instructions to the letter and sent only enough officers to prevent escape.

He said the two cars would follow the usual route from the state penitentiary to Swainsboro and would not seek any circuitous back roads.

4 Cells Ready

Four cells in the modest Emanuel county jail were ready for Alfred and Spence Edwards, their cousin Evalyn Lax and Spence's wife, all captured Thursday after a running gun battle and hectic chase through the tobacco road country of east Georgia.

They will be held in Swainsboro until they can be duly charged and tried for the killing of Garland Fields, agent of the Georgia bureau of investigation.

Thompson ordered Sheriff Youmans to take charge of the prisoners yesterday, wiring him that "there is no danger of mob violence by the good citizens of Georgia."

The governor was aroused by reports indicating that the foursome was rushed to the prison here after their arrest to prevent their being harmed by the posse which hunted them down.

One officer present at the capture reported they were rushed to the state prison here because "too many mad people were standing around with rifles and pistols."

BLAST BLOWS OUT WALL; 2 PERSONS HURT

Fireman and Woman Injured by Flying Glass from Numerous Explosions.

Special to The Star

GALION, March 6—A tractor-trailer servicing garage at the F. J. Egner & Son, Inc., petroleum hauling firm here was gutted by fire this morning.

F. J. Egner, president of the firm, said the loss would exceed $300,000.

Explosions during the two hour fire blew out the rear of the one story concrete block building. A fireman and a woman were hurt by flying glass.

Six mechanics and the shop foreman escaped injury, having left before explosions blew out the rear wall of the 80 by 100 foot garage used for repairing the firms fleet of heavy transport trucks.

Officials said there were four or five tractors in the garage at the time in addition to one new pickup truck. Tractors were said to be valued at at least $8,000 each.

Origin Not Determined

Origin of the fire is undetermined as yet. The alarm was turned in shortly after 9 a. m. by a mechanic who rushed to the nearby office building of the Egner firm.

Galion equipment was sent to the scene and a call made for assistance from the Crestline department which sent a truck to Galion.

Repeated explosions brought neighborhood residents into the street and hurried removal of office equipment from the firms 3-story main building close by. Explosions were felt at least four blocks away.

Mrs. Richard Chesbro, 31, whose home adjoins the Egner firm property, was hit in the leg by flying glass when she appeared at her back door after hearing explosions. She was treated by a Galion physician.

Fireman Leo Fabian of the Galion department, also cut by flying glass was taken to the city hospital with a badly lacerated hand.

Firemen Gain Control

Firemen brought the blaze under control shortly after 11 a. m. after laying more than 2,600 feet of hose lines. Fireman John Durtche said. Durtche directed efforts of firemen in the absence of Fire Chief Harry Kile.

Explosions and a thick pall of smoke brought hundreds to the scene milling through the maze of hose lines. Crestline equipment was unable to get to the scene of the fire by virtue of hose lines blocking the streets.

Mechanics were unable to say how the fire started. One trailer was being "steam cleaned" at the time and several tractors were undergoing repairs. Explosions were thought to have been caused by gas tanks on the vehicles blowing up.

In addition to the rolling stock, much valuable repair equipment and tools were destroyed. The building was completely gutted.

The firm whose home office is located in Galion is engaged in transportation of petroleum and petroleum products from bulk stations to dealers under a Public Utilities Commission permit. The firm has six other offices in the state.

CITY ASSURED HOSPITAL AID

Marion Will Get Assistance in Making Survey of Needs.

State assistance in planning a course of action to be taken here in respect to the federal-state hospital construction program as it applies to increased facilities for the Marion City hospital, was assured this week.

A survey of the city hospital situation by the state health department office of hospital facilities was initiated Wednesday, Mayor Harry L. Dowler reported today.

A. M. Settles, construction consultant for the office of hospital facilities, and C. J. Mosher of the office of hospital facilities, both of Columbus, were in Marion Wednesday to confer with local officials.

Here at Dowler's Request

They came at the written request of Mayor Dowler that the state health department hospital facilities office conduct a survey to ascertain what plan of action here would best fit into the federal-state hospital construction program in Ohio.

The mayor's request was made on the recommendation of state and federal hospital authorities who met with local officials here Feb. 19 to go over the construction program approved by the state and U. S. Surgeon General's office.

The representatives from Columbus here Wednesday conferred with city officials, looked over the city hospital and returned to Columbus. They took with them

The object, which seemed to be cloudlike, was described as elongated in shape, with a dark substance at the front of it. Moving slowly in the western sky it curved to the right and took off in a southerly direction. The object remained visible for some time the observers reported.

BRITAIN, FRANCE AND BENELUX FORM PACT

By The United Press

BRUSSELS, March 6—Britain, France and the Benelux countries (Belgium - Netherlands - Luxembourg) have agreed on a treaty of economic and political cooperation which the other nations of western Europe will be invited to join, it was announced today.

Contrary to some predictions, the treaty draft did not contain military provisions. Observers believed these may have been left out to make the treaty more attractive to other possible adherents, such as the Scandinavian countries.

The new treaty, announced by Sir George Rendel, British ambassador to Brussels, was completed in a single session of the Brussels conference and announced only a few minutes after the second session opened at 9:15 a. m.

The treaty was looked upon as the cornerstone of the Western European Union advocated by British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin to help halt the westward march of Communism.

It is open to all nations except those with totalitarian governments, it was announced. Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain was specifically mentioned as the totalitarian ruler of a country which was not eligible to join.

POWERS AGREE ON RUHR RULE

Decide on International Rule and Cooperation with Marshall Plan.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 6—The United States, Britain and France have agreed upon international control of the Ruhr and close cooperation to enlist western Germany's assets in the Marshall plan.

In conferences here the western powers also agreed western Germany should have a federal form of government, providing adequate central authority but protecting the rights of the various states.

A communique was issued tonight after the conferences ended.

No hard agreement was reached upon merger of the French zone with the United States-British zones of occupation, but responsible officials said decisions reached here will lead to that objective.

The three powers decided Germany will be represented in the international control of the Ruhr. No indication was given whether Russia will be invited to participate.

The Ruhr agreement was in general terms. The specific recommendations were not disclosed. They will be submitted first to the governments concerned.

To Meet Next Month

The three powers adjourned until next month their talks on the role Germany will play in the economic recovery program.

They agreed on prompt action "to coordinate as far as possible the economic policies of the three zones in such matters as foreign and inter-zonal trade, customs and freedom of movement for persons and goods."

"Such cooperation is essential if western Germany is to make its full and proper contribution to European recovery," the statement said.

STATE TO LEASE 891 ACRES FOR FARMING

Land in Scioto Area To Be Offered for Season.

The state of Ohio will lease approximately 891 acres of agricultural lands in the Scioto Ordnance Plant area for farming purposes this year.

The farmlands comprise eight tracts ranging in size from 35 to 250 acres and represent the major part of the land recently acquired by the state for the state welfare department's Boys Industrial School. Total acreage acquired from the War Assets Administration by the state was approximately 1,280 acres including the main administration area of the Ordnance Plant.

The tracts are situated in the area southwest of the 1,200 acres acquired by the Atomic Energy Commission for the Monsanto Chemical Co. atomic research installation. The area largely lies within the boundaries of Lykens road on the north, Victory road on the east, Williamsport road on the south and the Pennsylvania railroad on the west.

Bids will be received 12 noon March 12 by the welfare department's chief agriculturist, Homer B. Gill, at the Scioto Plant administration building. Leases are specified by tract rather than by acreage.

Leases will be effective March 15 and expire December 31, 1948. In cases where winter wheat crops have been sowed, the lease will carry over until the crops have been harvested. Terms of the leases provide that one-third of the total rental is to be paid at the commencement of the lease, one-third on June 1 and the third third on

Vets' Lincoln Park Housing Unit Marks First Anniversary

The veterans housing project, Marion's little community within a community, near Lincoln Park marks its first anniversary today.

On March 6, 1947, six families moved into the first of the 28 two-unit prefabricated structures. It was not until April 30 that the last of the 28 temporary dwellings was ready for occupancy.

At that time, however, the project was full, 56 families in all, and has remained so with a goodly number of applicants on the waiting list at the present time.

The project, co-sponsored by the city and the FPHA, was begun in July, 1946. The site originally had been occupied by the government for use as a trailer camp to accommodate war workers. BRIDGES FIRED FROM CIO JOB

Ousted for Supporting Third Party; New Deportation Move Reported.

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6 — The CIO ousted Harry Bridges as northern California regional director yesterday.

And, newspapers reported, a third attempt is to be made to deport the Australian-born longshore labor leader.

In Washington, however, aides of Attorney General Tom Clark said the Bridges case has not been reopened.

The CIO fired Bridges as northern California regional director yesterday because he went contrary to national CIO policy by supporting Wallace's third party and opposing the Marshall plan of aid to Europe.

He was warned two weeks ago to get in line with policy of the CIO executive committee on the issues or face ouster from the appointive director's position. He was silent on his ouster.

Bridges retains two elective posts. He is president of the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and a vice president of the National Executive CIO Council.

Successor Named

Tim Flynn, former member of the board of the CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers and member of the CIO organizing staff, was named Bridges' successor as director for northern California.

The climax of the CIO family fight came as newspapers reported a justice department investigator had been sent here "to seek evidence on which to base a third formal effort" to deport Bridges, a native of Australia. He is now a U. S citizen.

Bridges took note of the reports in a statement expressing no surprise at "my contemplated arrest" and hotly attacking the Truman administration for "political intimidation."

Reports 10 Arrests

He said 10 persons had been arrested recently and held without bail for deportation.

"This new device of arresting people on flimsy legal technicalities in order to remove them temporarily from the labor and political scene is both threatening and frightening to all believers in American justice and fair play.

"It boils down to this: Play ball with Truman and support his re-election or else—. My contemplated arrest following similar arrests of other labor union spokesmen is not surprising to us. We have known it was on its way for some time. Truman and his political henchmen are desperate. * * *".

agents, was ordered to take no part in the transfer of the prisoners from the white marble prison to the tiny jail in Swainsboro.

Thompson issued the instructions "to show the world there is no justifiable fear of mob violence" and "to prevent the anti-lynch boys in Washington from having additional ammunition to pass their bill against the south."

Doesn't Anticipate Trouble

Sheriff Youmans acknowledged his orders and said "I don't think we will have any trouble," but he declined to comment further.

Feeling against the Spence brothers ran high in Swainsboro last night following the burial there of the slain Fields, but the people generally and their peace officers seemed determined that legal justice should prevail.

GBI agent Fields was shot near Swainsboro Wednesday night when he attempted to question one of the Edwards brothers about a rifle.

The brothers and their women companions were arrested in a tobacco road swamp near Hephzibah, Ga., after an eight-day crime tour through Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia that began when Spence delivered Alf from a Murfreesboro, Tenn. jail.

In issuing the removal orders, the governor said he intended, with the help of the people and authorities of this area, to show the world Georgia has no "lynch complex."

At the same time, the governor called for state laws to end "intimidating" meetings of the Ku Klux Klan.

He charged the hooded organization with "cutting the ground beneath the feet" of southern congressmen who try to assure the world that anti-lynch laws are unnecessary.

Cabbie Sees Handcuffs, Hies Robbers to Police

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, March 6—Two house robbers sought in a night long search by a small army of police were captured today still handcuffed together some 10 miles from the scene where they shot down two radio patrolmen.

The robbers had made their get away overland through the hamlet of McMurray where they hired a taxicab. The driver noting they were handcuffed became suspicious and drove into an open gasoline station where two state policemen were checking cars in a widespread search for the gunmen.

One of the robbers was wounded in the right shoulder. Chief of Allegheny County Detectives C. S. Johnston identified the men as John Wilson, about 26,, and Edward O. Poft, 24, who was wounded.

the United States 185,000,000, and Australia, 85,000,000.

The agreed ceiling price is about 50 cents a bushel below the present market. Russia and Argentina refused to take part in the agreement. Argentina has been selling wheat to Europe at about $4.85 a bushel.

Argentina said it would not enter any wheat pact unless the governments also agreed on a broad trade treaty covering trucks, farm equipment and other machinery of the type Argentina imports.

The announcement of the pact by Leslie A. Wheeler, council chairman, said:

"At the maximum price the exporter must sell the quantity he has guaranteed to deliver and at the minimum price the importer must purchase the quantity he has guaranteed to buy."

Several members of congress from farm states have said they will oppose ratification of the agreement.

Undersecretary of Agriculture N. R. Dodd, who is the signer for the U. S government, said the pact may be referred to congress as a treaty or as an executive agreement. In either case it would be up to congress to decide whether the senate alone should act, or whether both house and senate should approve.

The agreement follows talks continued here since last Jan. 28, as well as an unsuccessful effort in London in 1947. Wheeler said the agreement "climaxes many years of effort to stabilize the world wheat market through international cooperation."

It would take effect Aug. 1, if ratified.

Bucyrus Team Dodges Bad Luck To Win Game

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, March 6—Bad luck which trailed the Bucyrus High school basketball squad Thursday night enroute to the Class A tournament at Findlay broke before the team went on the floor to defeat Lima South, 42-36.

Before leaving for Findlay one of three cars to carry the players and coaches broke a spring necessitating last minute rearrangements.

Enroute both the cars carrying Coach Al Pesek and that carrying Assistant Coach Charles Tschanen and the team struck a pile of paving bricks where road work was in progress at the Bucyrus city limits.

Coach Pesek's car was badly damaged and players were transferred to other cars to continue the trip. Only slightly damaged the car carrying Coach Tschanen and players continued on to Findlay. No one was injured in either mishap.

FARLEY PREDICTS BIG VOTE FOR WALLACE

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 6—Former Postmaster General James A. Farley predicts Henry A. Wallace's third party bid for the White House will poll some 5,000,000 votes next November. And, he says, "from half a million to a million" of them will come from New York.

Wallace, the one-time national Democratic chairman said last night, "is more of a threat to the Democratic party than the Democratic leaders realize."

He was interviewed on the "Meet the Press" radio program, during which he said flatly he was not a candidate for office in 1948 "neither for the presidency nor the vice presidency."

Aside from New York, where a "very serious situation" exists, the Wallace candidacy will draw strong support in Boston, sections of Connecticut, Philadelphia, Camden and other parts of New Jersey, Baltimore, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Louisville, Chicago, Milwaukee and other large industrial cities, Farley said.

In the Empire state, Wallace will draw from 75 to 80 per cent of his vote "out of the Democratic ranks," Farley asserted, adding that the state might go Republican.

The Wallace bid, he said, may mean that the Republicans will choose an "old-line" nominee and "I would say at the moment that Mr. Dewey is ahead."

Palestine Problem Up to U. S., Russia

By The Associated Press

LAKE SUCCESS, March 6—Solving the Palestine problem seemed today to have been left mainly to the United States and Russia.

After two weeks of cautious debate, the United Nations security council late yesterday called on the five major powers to find a method of carrying out partition of the Holy Land into Jewish and Arab nations, recommended by the assembly Nov. 29.

Britain announced off the floor she would not take part in the consultations. China has abstained from much of the UN voting on Palestine. France has been reluctant to take a stand.

U. S. Army Checks Claim Hitler Fled Germany

By The Associated Press

MUNICH, Germany, March 6—U. S. Army officials today checked a former German pilot's claim that Adolph Hitler and Eva Braun escaped from Germany near the end of the war.

One American official described as "fantastic" the signed statement by Arthur Friedrich Rene Von Angelotte-Mackersen that the couple flew to Denmark in a Junkers 52 transport shortly before Germany surrendered in May, 1945.

(In December, 1947, Capt. Baumgart, a former Luftwaffe pilot, told a district court in Warsaw that he flew Hitler and a woman he believed to be Eva Braun from besieged Berlin to Denmark on April 28, 1945.)

U. S. officers began questioning Mackensen yesterday when they received a tip from a former girl friend, who said did not believe him.

The 26-year-old Mackensen, who claims to have been a bodyguard of Hitler, said the last he saw of the fuehrer and Eva Braun was when they took off by plane for Spain. He said he followed but crashed in southern France.

Driver Pleads Guilty, Fined $100, Loses License

Forest D. Thacker of 304 Wilson avenue, arrested at 10:15 p. m. yesterday and charged with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, pleaded guilty to the charge in the municipal court this morning. He was fined $100 and costs and his driver's rights were suspended for three years.

A car driven by Thacker was involved in an accident with one driven by Robert Brown of 530 North Greenwood street at 9:37 p. m. yesterday on Park Boulevard when the Thacker car attempted to make a left turn onto West Church street while the Brown car was going north on Park Boulevard at West Church. Thacker was held in custody, pending his appearance in court this morning.

HOSPITAL

plans of the present hospital layout.

To Make Recommendations

After a detailed study of the present hospital situation, they will make recommendations as to what plan of action would best answer construction questions here.

It was not indicated when the study would be completed, but it was suggested that following completion of the survey, a public meeting will be held here. At this time results of the study by the state hospital construction consultant and the office of hospital facilities would be explained by Dr John D. Porterfield, state health director, and Dr. A. J. Borosky, head of the hospital construction program in Ohio.

It is expected that the state survey will contain recommendations on whether or not a permanent addition to the present hospital would be feasable and possible recommendations for a new hospital.

RUHR RULE

S. Ambassador Lewis Douglas said.

"These meetings have been extraordinarily fruitful and successful. Within the past 10 days more progress has been made than in the preceding three years."

The three-power statement said it was agreed that the combined British-American zones and the French zone of Germany "should be fully associated in the European recovery program and adequately represented on any continuing organization."

Germany Represented

The statement indicates that all western Germany will be represented at the mid-March meeting in Paris of the 16 nations which seek to participate under the Marshall plan. Germany probably will be represented by the three allied commanders, but this will not rule out later direct participation by the Germans themselves.

HOSPITAL ADDITION SOUGHT AT GALION

Special to The Star

GALION, March 6—City council at its adjourned meeting Friday night, passed a motion to have the city solicitor draw up the necessary legislation to authorize the city hospital board to revise plans and specifications according to previous bond issues and estimates for construction of an addition to the present hospital building.

This action was taken after council heard a letter read from seven city physicians requesting immediate action to provide adequate hospital facilities, and also heard oral requests from at least two doctors who were in attendance at the meeting.

The letter to council signed by the seven Galion physicians stated that the people of Galion twice voted bond issues amounting to $175,000, for purpose of building an addition to City hospital. It asked council to immediately advertise for bids for the construction.

The letter also pointed out that hospital facilities are entirely inadequate, that plans for the addition have already been completed by the previous council and the hospital board. It gave the following dire needs for beds patients are now being placed in halls because of lack of beds, patients are being sent home early before recovery is complete; medical and surgical cases need beds; beds also are needed for maternity, pediatric, isolation and emergency cases.

Dr. Mart Helfrich and Dr R. M Malone addressed council on the needs for an addition to the hospital.

Don't Want Your Advice, U. S. Informs Satellites

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 6—The United States has told three Russian satellite nations it does not want their advice on Germany.

The three — Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Poland — had asked to be consulted on American policies in dealing with German problems.

Undersecretary of State Lovett in a blunt note sent to their embassies here yesterday flatly rejected this bid. And since the Soviet Union had backed the request, Lovett sent a copy of his note to the Russians also.

Plain Words

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON — ...n question that ...ng up ...ng in congress ...y oratory?"

Not much ... in the house ... some time and ...er when he gets ... nerves. Not ... is sad. But it's ... to the speaker ... to make a speech ... a fistful of notes and a head full of facts, or at least ideas.

James Marlow

He's been working on this speech for weeks, polishing his phrases, sharpening his points.

Then he gets the floor and he starts. He's good for a minute or two. Then someone else is on his feet saying something.

"... If the distinguished senator will permit, I should like to state that in the main I agree but ..."

There it goes. The speaker has to stop his high-powered prose and argue a point.

When that's all settled—with you in the gallery wishing he'd go on with the speech—he goes on with it for perhaps another minute.

Then someone else is up and saying "will the senator yield a moment?" More argument over what the new man says.

Then the speech goes on. Someone else is up. "Will the senator yield a moment?" more argument.

It happens like that all the time. The speaker could refuse to yield any time. Most often he does yield.

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan is one of the leading senate Republicans, besides being chairman of the senate foreign relations committee.

YET HE RAN INTO THE same problem on Tuesday arguing for the Marshall plan to help Europe. He had tough going.

But on the day before it was different. Vandenberg made sure of that.

He planned a long talk on the European recovery plan. It turned out to be what probably will be called one of the most important speeches of the year.

Knowing what usually goes on when someone tries to make a long speech, Vandenberg started by saying:

"For the sake of continuity I respectfully ask my colleagues to permit me to conclude my general statement on the pending bill without interruption."

They did. He spoke for 90 minutes and no one broke in.

When he took time to make a speech like that he had plenty of listeners. It's one of the few speeches of 1948 likely to influence the other senators.

MOST OF THE TIME, it seems, senators and representatives talk to half-empty houses, with the other members drifting in and out, their minds already made up on how they'll vote.

That's because most of the heavy work in congress is done in committees. Those committees draw up the bills upon which the full house and senate vote.

Those committees hold hearings, listen to a lot of witnesses for or against a bill, and finally put a bill together.

The other members, since all are members of one committee or another themselves, give up a lot of respect to a committee's work.

When a bill is approved by a committee—unless the subject is a hot one—the majority of members usually go along with the committee and approve it, too.

Further, most of the bills voted upon have been introduced by the party with the majority of members in congress.

The members of that majority party stick together pretty well in voting for party-sponsored bills.

And—while the committee hearings are going on and bills drawn up, the members of congress have plenty of time to decide whether they'll be for or against a bill at voting time.

Your Good Health

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Infant With Whooping Cough

Every parent should realize that whooping cough is a serious condition in the young infant and one which may prove fatal in babies under a year old. Though not as a rule deadly in older children, it is most troublesome and distressing because of the prolonged coughing attacks, vomiting, and loss of weight and strength.

Whooping cough has a deceptively mild start, causing only a slight cough with perhaps a bit of fever and a little nasal discharge at first.

As the condition progresses, the symptoms become worse, and severe storms of coughing occur. At the end of the coughing attack, the patient usually draws in the breath sharply. This produces a crowing sound known as the whoop.

A vaccine is available which can be given to children to help prevent whooping cough. If these inoculations do not prevent the attack, at least they make it much milder. Even if an infant develops whooping cough, prompt treatment with this vaccine within a few days after the symptoms develop, will help to lessen the severity of the symptoms. At the Chicago Municipal Contagious Hospital, it has been found that with proper treatment the dangers of this disease are greatly reduced.

The patient should be in bed for at least two or three weeks. Fresh air is important. When the patient is allowed to be up and around, sunshine will be of benefit. Cold air, chilling, smoke, dust, overexertion and cold drinks all may bring on attacks of coughing and vomiting, and hence should be avoided.

The food given to the patient should be easily digestible and should contain all of the necessary vitamins. If the vomiting attacks are severe the patient may be given thick cereals, as they are not vomited up so easily.

It does not seem possible to check the coughing attacks by the use of medicines, and it is not well to attempt to stop these attacks completely since during the coughing the secretions in the bronchi or small tubes in the lungs are brought up. Sedatives or quieting drugs like the barbiturates may be used to promote sleep and rest when coughing interferes with them too much.

In recent times, what is known as pertussis immune serum has been used in the treatment of whooping cough and seems to give good results if injected early in the course of the disease. This serum is blood serum taken either from persons who have recently recovered from whooping cough or from animals. The animals are given injections of the whooping cough vaccine and later the blood serum is withdrawn from them and preserved for use in treating children. As a general rule three or four doses of this serum are used, given at two-day intervals.

The chief danger of whooping cough lies in the development of pneumonia as a complication. The sulfonamide drugs and penicillin are, of course, beneficial should pneumonia occur and it may even be useful in warding it off.

Questions and Answers

R. E.: If an X-ray of the chest shows congestion of the lung and a patient receives penicillin, what would cause the congestion?

Answer: I presume that there is some lung infection present in this case. Just what type of germs are responsible for it cannot be stated. However, it is evident that they are of the type which is sensitive to the action of the penicillin.

Roving Reports

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK — TRELLIS MAE PEEBLE and her friend, Hortense, were talking about their favorite subject—how their husbands wasted money.

"What burns me up about my Wilbur," said Trellis Mae, "is the money he throws away in tips. He's such a mouse he hates to offend anybody. I could buy three new dresses a year with the tips he gives."

"If housewives got tipped for service the way waiters and barbers and bellboys do," agreed Hortense, "we could all have wardrobes like movie stars."

Hal Boyle

A glint came into Mrs. Peeble's eyes. Hortense had given her an idea.

When her hero came home that night, feeble from mental cramp induced by correcting his secretary's spelling, Trellis Mae announced:

"Wilbur, I'm tired of being a slave. That's all a housewife is. You men treat your home just like it was a hotel or a restaurant. Okay if that's the way you feel. But you're going to have to pay for it.

"FROM NOW on I'm going to charge you 25 cents a night to check your hat and coat here. You're going to have to tip me 15 cents for serving you breakfast and a quarter for dinner. I want at least $2 a week for being your chambermaid and 50 cents every time I have to run your suit over to the cleaner's like a bellboy."

Wilbur was too weak to defend himself. He began paying. It didn't seem much at first. But the next weekend, when the boss at the office invited him to the regular Friday night poker-fest, Wilbur couldn't go. His pocket had been drained empty.

The next morning he launched his domestic counter-offensive.

"What is this—a souvenir from the coal dealer?" he demanded, holding up a piece of burned toast. Trellis Mae took it away with a strange look.

At dinner that evening Wilbur forked up an underdone piece of steak and told his wife coldly: "Please drag this thing back into the kitchen and finish broiling it."

HE LEFT HIS QUARTER up in the grease on the plate. Dressing the following day, he found a button missing from his shirt cuff. He dangled the sleeve belligerently before his wife.

"What kind of a laundry is this?" he demanded. "I shell out my money for service. Why don't I get any?"

After three days of such scenes, Trellis Mae's defenses crumbled completely.

"I don-don't want any more of your m-m-measly tips," she wept. It's turned me into an old grouch. W-W-Wilbur."

"Well, I'll call the whole thing off," he said, adding carefully—"if you return me the $17.65 I tipped you."

Trellis Mae counted out the money, and then sniffed sadly:

"I only s-s-started this whole b-b-business anyway to get enough to buy me a n-n-new dress."

WILBUR'S CONSCIENCE began to bother him.

"What would the dress cost?"

"O-o-only $65," wept his wife, quickly upping the figure by $10.

So Wilbur sat down and wrote out a check. Now he is telling his friends at the office how he put one over on his wife. But Trellis Mae—she's got a pretty new dress.

Sauce for the Goose

ONCE in a while a principle comes out of a tax discussion, instead of a lot more nine-digit figures. Senator Millikin of Colorado, one of many legislators getting interested in general tax revision as a means of survival, stated this principle a few days ago:

"Our risk capital will have to come from the government under state socialism or from the middle and upper income brackets under free enterprise. The open opponents of the free-enterprise system and their crypto-associates are not unaware of the alternatives and are highly pleased with the present situation."

In other words, the only way to keep from killing the goose that lays the golden eggs is to take care of it. Private-enterprise capitalism means that business grows by money invested in it by private persons. As business grows, more people are employed, more people are benefited. The quickest way to paralyze private-enterprise capitalism is to keep it from getting new capital, which is one of the effects of existing federal tax rates and methods of applying them.

Some of this can be blamed on careless legislation. The rest must be blamed on the people Senator Millikin calls "opponents of the free-enterprise system and their crypto-associates." If the Kremlin itself had planned it that way it couldn't have done a better job of hurting free-enterprise capitalism than some of the federal tax laws and collection practices now in effect.

Dud

SENATOR BALL'S proposal for a veto-less council of nations outside the UN fell with a thud and quickly expired. Senators Taft and Vandenberg saw its weakness and killed whatever chance it had.

The Minnesota senator proposed a council of 11 nations, any seven of which could call for armed force to halt "aggression or subversion." The Russians would have been invited to join, but obviously wouldn't have committed themselves to an agency directed against them.

United States participation in such a council would have taken our foreign policy from congress and placed it in the hands of any seven member nations deciding on war. The people never would have consented to such a plan, and congress certainly wouldn't have considered signing over its war-declaring power to an international council. Senator Ball was naive to have thought otherwise.

The day may come when nations surrender their war-declaring power to a tribunal dedicated to world peace. That is one of UN's idealistic aims. But that aim will have to be achieved within the framework of UN or some similar organization embodying all nations.

Unequal Representation

THE United States conference of mayors is helping to bring pressure on cornstalk blocs to temper their domination of state legislatures. A booklet called "Government of the People, by the People, for the People" is being distributed by the organization to show the injustice of unequal representation.

Eighty-four million Americans, it is said, are being denied proper representation in state legislations because rural members refuse to budge from their entrenched positions. Most state constitutions call for automatic reapportionment, but many states are being denied this by the opposition of rural blocs whose dominance would be broken if it happened. Cities pay the bulk of state taxes, contain close to 60 per cent of the population, carry on most of the nation's commerce and industry, yet are given about a third of the representation they're entitled to in state legislatures as a whole.

Ohio's unequal representation issue may come to a head this fall. Proposition may be put on the ballot forcing the general assembly to reapportion its membership. The city of Cleveland alone has 16 per cent of the state's population but only 7 per cent of the state's membership in the house of representatives. The last reapportionment was made in 1933, based on the 1930 census. It was continued in effect, after its automatic expiration in 1943, to 1951, by a decision of the supreme court.

Ohio's representation in the U.S. house of representatives is based, meanwhile, on districts determined in 1913 from the census of 1910, another example of unequal representation.

Keepers of the Flame

WHEN Germany was defeated, it was hoped the days of men without a country were over. The governments in exile went home. Statesmen who refused to knuckle under to the Nazis returned to their capitals.

But now a new terror is at large. The latest to join the ranks of refugees from it are Dr. Juraj Slavik and Dr. Frantisek Nemec, Czechoslovak ministers to the United States and Canada respectively.

They join the distinguished company of Nagy of Hungary, Mikolajczyk of Poland, Matchek of Yugoslavia and scores of lesser known who elected to speak up against police state terror. In foreign lands now, they are the keepers of democracy's flame until free speech and free thought return once more to their native lands.

Scanning the Record

By George E. Sokolsky

One World Made Into Four Worlds by War.

DUMBARTON Oaks conference and eventually the conference of nations at San Francisco, which was called into being to substitute the United Nations for the league of Nations, the charter for the covenant, looked to "one world" as the only means of saving the world from war.

In support of the "one world" ideal was the assumption that mankind had already learned from history and experience that war did not pay and that intelligent men could and would find a formula for keeping the peace while maintaining their differences and identity. Unfortunately all these ideas and plans failed to recognize that every civilization that has ever existed had to submit to pressure either by a competitive civilization or by what used to be called barbarians (that is, outsiders, who sought to enrich themselves on the spoils of the most advanced society.

SOKOLSKY

Instead of "one world," the end of the war brought several competing societies:

▶The western society, which consists of the remaining western Christian, nationalistic countries, the United States and all the countries of North and South America, Great Britain and her dominions, the Scandinavian countries, France, Italy, Spain and Portugal, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and Switzerland. To these may be added Greece and Turkey, which have become wards of the western states.

▶The Eurasian society, which consists of Soviet Russia and those countries which have either voluntarily or by coercion joined the federation of Socialist Soviet republics and its European agency, the comintern. This consists of an anti-Christian society which accepts a fatalistic inevitability as a basis for political and economic life, and a creed of biologic materialism that reduces man to a thing of those who rule him. It culminates in total despotism over the mind and body of the individual.

All Excepting Greece

To this group now belong all the peoples of Europe east of the Elbe, with the exception of Greece, and it ends at the Pacific ocean. This includes eastern Germany, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Albania, Bulgaria, Romania, the Soviet Union, Mongolia, parts of Manchuria, China and Korea. Curiously, the line roughly follows the geographical division between east and west in Europe, between western Christianity, which include the Roman Catholic and Protestant sects, and eastern orthodox Christianity. (There are of course exceptions, such as Poland and Finland.) For centuries the Teutonic peoples safeguarded the civilization of western Europe from being overwhelmed by the hordes that migrated from this area into Europe; but the Teutonic peoples have been reduced and no barrier stands in the way of Eastern conquest.

▶The Islamic society has been reduced to wards of western Europe, to colonization and control. Its brilliant civilization had been in hibernation for some centuries. After the last war, Islam is no longer quiescent or dependent but is assuming an aggressiveness mindful of its past.

The Islamic group consists of Egypt, Saudi Arabia, trans-Jordania, Yemen, Syria, Lebanon, Iran, Iraq, Palestine (in contest with the Jews, now a western European group), Pakistan, the terra incognita from the Caspian to Baikal, Sinkiang, Kansu, and parts of Shantung in China. To these must be added the Moslem peoples of North Africa from the Libyan desert to the Atlantic. And finally Turkey and the Islamic peoples inside the Eurasian society in the Balkans and the Soviet Union.

Difference of Control

The Eurasian society submits to rigid disciplines imposed by Soviet Russia. In fact, its principal political characteristic is submission to discipline. It contrasts with the western society where cooperation, consultation and compromise are the means for achieving decisions.

▶The Far Eastern society is in chaos. Japan is the ward of the United States; Korea is held by the United States and Soviet Russia; China, India, the Malay States and Indonesia are in civil war, revolution and flux. Yet the Far Eastern society is the largest population mass, with the longest continuous history of resilience.

Thus, instead of "one world," the war has produced four worlds, all in disorder, all competitive and one of them perched for conquest and for the reduction of the other three to its will. The Eurasian society is the most aggressive, the best prepared, the most focussed of the four. This imposes upon the other three the huge cost and strain of a prolonged period of the defensive planning and action.

Just a Minute

Harry Needs a Mate, Himself

A presidential spokesman again has denied reports that Margaret Truman is engaged to be married.

The rumor probably got started when someone overheard her father singing "Oh Promise Me" to delegations from some of the doubtful states.

The purposeful gentlemen who have been frequenting the presidential parlor of late have come, not to woo Margaret, but to rue Harry.

They are not seeking her hand but his neck.

That's why it now appears that, if Miss Truman wants a White House wedding, she'd better be making her plans. If the Republicans are victorious this fall, she won't be able to get in except on visiting day.

Incidentally, all she'd have to worry about — other than the bridegroom, that is — would be something old and something new and something borrowed. Just about any Democrat would qualify as something blue.

The Old Press Agent

By Frank Tripp

ANNIE OAKLEY was the product of the old time press agent, but once she bit the hand that petted her to prominence. "Little Sure Shot" turned her guns on that which made her. She sued a string of newspapers across the country.

Annie was the world's greatest woman marksman of her time, probably of all time. Her fame has been revived by "Annie Get Your Gun," now playing on Broadway. She was a star of Buffalo Bill's Wild West at the turn of the century.

Annie's skill was her own but her fame was the creation of a master press agent, Major James M. Burke. He also "made" Buffalo Bill.

TRIPP

Being tops as a crack shot, Annie had imitators. When one of them fell into the news in unfavorable light, youngsters of the press confused her with the genuine Anne and got their papers into trouble. Annie took to the road to collect balm from those who had lauded her to fame and fortune.

Press men of that day looked upon it as shabby repudiation of a sort of license which press agents granted the press in behalf of their clients; in return for which they pre-empted plenty of such license for themselves. Annie collected all of six cents from my paper.

When I was a press agent and ragged impresario several Wild West shows toured the country. There were Col William F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill;" Major Gordon Lillie, "Pawnee Bill;" Colonel Cummins' show and Miller Bros.' 101 Ranch. All exhibited in great open arenas with only canvas sidewalls and canopied covering for the customers.

A greater shot than Annie Oakley was Johnnie Baker, Cody's foster son. I last saw Johnnie when we leaned over the fence surrounding Buffalo Bill's grave, looking down on Denver, and discussed with Fred Bonfils Wyoming's scheme to move the old scout's grave to Cody, Wyoming.

The old time press agent was as great an institution as the show itself. Major Burke was a master but not the peer of them all. P. T. Barnum's Tody Hamilon was as great.

As late as my day the lovable liars carried on the tradition. All were the predecessors of those gentlemen who now operate from ivory towers at high retainers under the title of public relations counsel. My best friends among them were Dexter Fellows, Doc Waddell, Lester Thompson and Ed Norwood, who invented "Diggledy Dan."

Of these, Doc Fellows was tops but to me Doc Waddell best exemplified the craft. He wore the uniform, so to speak. His garb typified his profession. The most conspicuous part of it were the gay kerchiefs which he wore in place of collar and tie.

Asked why he wore them, he replied, "because everybody else wears a collar." That retort expresses the whole philosophy of the old press agent. His aim was to do the unusual and conspicuous thing

I first met Waddell in days when I sat beside David Belasco, Winchel Smith, Jerome Kern, John Golden and the minstrel kings and saw them put the finishing touches on their productions which were yet to be seen on Broadway. Days when I stayed into the night in some bar's back room with Victor Herbert and his cello.

Sitting Bull was before my time, but I had a grunting acquaintance with Geronimo, vicious Apache Indian chief and raider, who was paroled in Col. Cummins' custody for palefaces to see at the Pan American in Buffalo in 1901. They pinned these stories on Doc Waddell way back then:

A squaw was taken sick and an ambulance came to take her to a hospital. Quick as a wink Doc saw the chance for nationwide publicity. He told reporters that

The Military Phase Begins

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON

THE Soviet-western conflict is now clearly passing into a new and perhaps decisive phase. Phase one was the period of American self-delusion — a phase of appeasement toward the Soviet Union. Phase two was a period of awakening — a phase of attempts to halt Soviet imperialism by political and economic measures, culminating in the European recovery program. Phase three will be a military phase marked by defensive pacts, military basing arrangements and coordination of war plans throughout the non-Soviet world.

The first major measure of this new phase is likely to be what amounts to a defensive alliance between the western European powers and the United States. Just what form this arrangement may take is still uncertain. There is also disagreement within the administration as to whether the initiative should be left to the Europeans or should be taken by us. The important fact remains that remarkable unanimity has suddenly appeared on all levels of American policy making, as to the need for an American-European alliance of some sort.

This is a logical sequel to recent events. The actual beginning of the new phase in the Soviet-western conflict must be traced to British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin's call for a union of western Europe. Bevin's bold proposal was put forward with some haste because the British government had secret advance intimations of the Soviet plans for Czechoslovakia and Finland. It was welcomed particularly warmly at the state department. It has now been given strong impetus by the actual occurrence of the rape of Czechoslovakia, and the beginning of the attack on Finland. In fear and dismay, most western European leaders are now pressing for immediate realization of the Bevin idea.

Inadequate Without U. S.

In the course of the preliminary discussions, however, several of the western European leaders, and especially Premier Spaak of Belgium, have pointed out that a union of western Europe no longer would be strong enough. The Soviets would not be impressed by any mere grouping of states militarily and economically exhausted by the war. In order to make the proposed union truly effective, the United States would have to join the party, at least to the extent of joining in military and strategic planning and adding American strength to the pool.

This point of view was relayed back to Washington some time ago, and met with a friendly response here.

While the procedure is still unsettled, the American policy-makers seem to be pretty well agreed on what they ultimately want. Broadly speaking, the desired blueprint is for a western European union, re-insured militarily by the United States with a European-American combined staff to do the homework. This would be, in effect, a military-strategic copy of the pattern of economic cooperation already laid down by the Marshall plan.

Seen As Valuable Aid

The development of such a new pattern would obviously solve many pressing problems of a practical nature which are difficult for this country to deal with on a unilateral basis. Cooperation among all the nations along the Atlantic seaboard should provide an easy solution for the question of Iceland and Greenland bases, now in dispute with Iceland and Denmark. It should remove the remaining Portugese objections to the strategic use of the Azores. It should make it possible to reach agreements with France and Belgium concerning the offense of North Africa and the Belgian Congo. It should permit coordination of American and British strategic planning and political effort in all the many areas of joint interest.

Above all, development of this new pattern should make it possible to tackle the most basic of all problems from the European standpoint (those listed above are, after all, of primary interest to this country). This is the problem of the defense of Europe itself against Soviet aggression. Solution of this problem will lay the worst ghost now haunting European minds, of Soviet armies marching almost unopposed to the North Sea and the English Channel.

It's All Depending

All this, to be sure, is reckoning without the inevitable slips betwixt the cup and the lip. At the moment, for example, the French are having an acute attack of their neurosis about Germany, which is tragically natural, but now sadly out of date. French demands for extreme guaranties against the re-emergence of a German state are thus hampering the initial agreement between Britain, France and the Benelux countries, which is the necessary nucleus for any western European union.

Yet these difficulties, in the logic of the situation, are bound to prove temporary. Military measures to show a strong front against Soviet aggression are now clearly needed. They will, therefore, eventually be taken. American participation is needed to make these measures effective.

The United States will participate. The alternative is too clear and too grim to permit any other outcome.

Boris How Could You?

In a new play Boris Karloff, the old chiller-diller, plays a gentle, kindly college professor who wouldn't harm a fly (unless the fly favored returning a faculty member at 65). He is sweetness and light throughout. Nobody gets strangled, poisoned or scared to death. It was pretty terrifying to a Karloff fan. We kept saying to our selves "He is just a sweet old professor in baggy pants now, but the university will open a semester any minute and six bodies will fall out."

But Boris grew sweeter and sweeter. He didn't flash a grimace. There was no old college leer. It was like meeting Dracula in a cap and gown. How was the show? We wouldn't know. We remained an old Karloff fan and our Karloff is not Foxy Grandpa, Kris Kringle, Daddy Long-legs or Timothy Dwight.

Basketball

By TRUMAN TWILL

Ever since basketball became big-time stuff and quit being a scuffle staged in comparative privacy by energetic boys with nothing else to do between the end of football season and the beginning of baseball season, every fond parent in the land has been keeping an eye on his progeny's potentialities.

Can the kid lay up a ball with either hand, cut either from the right or left, pivot without falling on his kisser, stop on a dime, snap his wrists, get his feet together for a set shot, hit from the corners—and how tall is he likely to be?

Does he have the old bruiser spirit that makes him relish a stiff body-check, hands like hams, the right kind of muscular coordination, a good eye for depth, the ability to shift into a lope from a standing start and the kind of mind to take advantage of teamwork—and how tall is he likely to be?

Is he patient enough to stand for hours in all the positions there are, practicing all the shots there are under all the handicaps there are until he is able to wham a basketball where it belongs with his eyes closed, his breath coming in short pants and his body off balance—and how tall is he likely to be?

Is a basket bolted to the side of a garage an invitation for him to spend all his waking hours in the vicinity, feinting, pivoting, practicing dribbles both high and low, experimenting with hooks, one-handers, push-ups and layups—and how tall is he likely to be?

Will he be able to pose for a picture, both arms outstretched, holding a basketball suspended in each hand, can he get rid of the ball without traveling, what is his foul-shooting average, has he mastered the fine art of the follow-in shot and can he take the ball off the backboard—also how tall is he likely to be?

Because if he shows ability in these lines, does not grow up to be shortsighted or cockeyed, keeps his health, is a fair student, likes to play games, is willing to concentrate on the great game of basketball—and grows up to be six feet tall or better—the kid's practically a sure thing, which means his fond parent (male) can sit in the bleachers and watch him play on the team.

And if anyone still doesn't know why there are so many tall kids competing for places on basketball teams these days it's because the old men stretch 'em, to make sure they'll be six feet or over. Come here, son, and lie down on this amusing contrivance, copied after the thing they used to call a "rack" during the Spanish inquisition. There. Now this won't hurt...

The dramatic production, "Questions in the Temple," a one-act play in three scenes, has its setting in the temple at Jerusalem at the time of the Passover feast. The cast of characters includes Raymond Harty, Pauline Oiler, Cecil Brown, Juanita Cogan, Joan Roseberry, Margene Heisel, Frank McClaskey, Jack Somerlot, Clinton Taylor and Glen McClaskey. The Youth director is Cecil Brown, with Mrs. R. A. Maxim as adult counsellor. The assistant director and prompter is Miriam Merchant. Five committees functioning in the production are costumes: Barbara Oiler and Joyce Wintringham; make-up: Norma Jean Albert, Mary Jane Taylor and Barbara Albert; properties: Arlene Gorby, Phyllis Bell and Betty Bell; stage crew: Paul Bell, John Kreitzer, James McClaskey, and Fred Coffey, and publicity Roberta Yazel, Nettie Lou Dickason, and James McClaskey.

DAILY LENTEN MEDITATION

CHRIST in You, THE HOPE of Glory

HUMILIATION OF CHRIST

WE FIND the humiliations and the exalting of Christ briefly described in the passage Phil. 2:5-11, which is as follows: "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: Who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: But made Himself of no reputation, and took upon Him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of man: And being found in fashion as a man, He humbled Himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. Wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a name which is above every name: That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth: And that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God, the Father."

The death of Christ is the most important fact in redemption, because we, lost sinners, could be redeemed neither by precept nor example, but only by the all-sufficient offering in the suffering and dying of our Lord Jesus Christ.

REV. H. N. DOERRES,
St. John's and St. Joseph's Evangelical and Reformed Church charge, Waldo.

The Test of Obedience

A Sermonette

By REV. ALBERT M. HOOD
Pastor of Second Pilgrim Holiness Church.

Text, John 14:14—"If ye love Me, keep My commandments."

IT IS the meaningful words of Christ in our text that will aid us in getting the correct answer, when we are tested in regard to our love for Christ. Basically, obedience to the bidding of Jesus is the correct answer.

1. The text is a Biblical prescription which will test the love we voice. It is the admonition of the scripture in I John 3:18, "My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth." Words of understanding love carry a great weight, and too often are left unspoken. However it does take more than mere words to satisfy the commandments of God. A "BORN AGAIN HEART" out of which issues the "TRANSFORMED LIFE" in conformance with the command of God are the only convincing evidences of our love to our Redeemer.

2. This test has the sanction of our reason. Again the scripture tells us, James 4:16 "Therefore to him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin." The "Thou shalt not's . . ." of God are not the only laws which are broken by men and women today. There are numberless times when God has spoken, "Thou shalt . . ." but the task or command has been left undone. Darkness sweeps over the soul, and endless pounding beats upon the mind of one who sins the sin of omission. Yet, in contrast, when Christ has spoken, and we have to the best of our ability carried out the command, how blessed the reassurance that floods the soul. "Faithful unto death" in doing the commandments of our Christ will bring His eternal, "Well done."

3. This again is the test to which the born again heart will respond. Once a person is "Born again" into the family of God, obedience to the heavenly Father sets chords of heavenly music swelling in the heart. The great score of life is ever before us, and too sad that so many heed not the proper notes in the proper time, which are the commands of God, and the deafening clamor of today's life, is anything but the glorious symphony of life, as planned by God.

How easy it would be, to practice the correct notes, in the correct timing, under the leadership of our great Conductor. Then and only then would reverbrate from the born again hearts of all men, the stirring symphony of life, echoing in heavenly strains of music.

4. Experience puts its seal of approval upon this test! While experience is said to be an expensive teacher, yet in paths of love and truth, each experience, serves to set vibrant chords echoing with stronger and clearer tones. Each new experience of obedience adding to the joys and peace that flood the obedient soul. Truly under the leadership of Christ, and in obedience to his leading, we gain the experiences that leads us to "know the length, the breadth, the depth and height of His love."

5. Finally there is no test that can surmount obedience. "Behold to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams." Naught can take the place of true-hearted, whole-hearted obedience to the commandments of our Lord, Jesus Christ. Sacrifice and offerings do bring rich rewards, yet the final test of love to God, lies in our complete obedience to His commands.

Let us purpose that we "shall not love in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth," and in that obedience have the smile of God's approval upon our hearts.

Re-Webbing a Chair Usually Not Difficult

The re-webbing of an upholstered chair is by no means a hard job, provided that it is done when only one or two webs are broken and while the springs are fairly well held in place by the remaining sound webs. Usually one broken web will advertise itself plainly by an oversoft spot in the seat of the chair.

The first step is to turn the chair over on a table or bench and remove the bottom cloth dust-cover. You will see plainly where the web has torn or the tacks pulled out of the bottom edge of the frame. Before you do anything further, you should study the webbing carefully and note how the ends of each strip are turned over and lapped so as to make a strong edge for holding the tacks.

If the trouble is that the tacks have pulled out, you simply have to stretch the web tightly across the frame, drive in three tacks, and then lap the end of the strip and tack it by staggering the two rows of tacks as shown. This is much stronger than tacking in a line. Your work will be easier and better if you can have some one press down on the springs while you stretch and tack the strips.

If a web is badly frayed it should be replaced. The new strip should be cut to the exact length of the old one. Tacks should be set in new points and not in the old holes. New strips are fastened in place by first lapping and tacking down one end securely and then stretching the strip across, tacking lightly, and then lapping and securing with staggered tacks.

While webbing is the professional manner in which to back up the springs in the seat of an upholstered chair, some very excellent jobs have been done by removing all the webs, and substituting a solid chair-bottom. This is done by first re-tying the springs securely, and then cutting a piece of quarter-inch thick plywood the exact size of the bottom of the frame so that it fits around the legs and comes to the edge of the frame, and fastening it in place with small screws. Once this is properly done there is never any further trouble with the chair seat, although it may not be quite as resilient as if it were webbed. There is another advantage to this method in that the bottom can be readily removed at any time in order to get at the springs.

Once you have worked on a chair, you will lose any fear you may have had that it is complicated. The average person will have little trouble in making furniture repairs if they study construction of it and follow the pattern that is in front of their eyes. One important thing to remember about furniture is that you do not use nails. When you have a repair to make, drill a hole first, and then set in screws. A well set screw has exactly 12 times the strength and value of a nail, where furniture is concerned. Another thing to remember is that furniture wood is usually very hard and very, very dry. Therefore it is apt to split, and so should be handled and worked with care.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

Asphalt Floor Tile

Q. I have an asphalt (not rubber) tile floor in my kitchen, and, although I wax it after each washing, it has become very spotted and rough in front of the sink and stove. Would it be advisable to put on a coat of clear varnish?

A. No, it would not. No kind of paint, varnish or other finish should be applied to your type of tile—nothing but a non-rubbing kind of wax. I believe you have damaged your tile either with a paste wax, or with grease from the dishes or stove. A grease-proof asphalt tile should be used in a kitchen. It may be that yours is the ordinary type, not intended for a kitchen. The roughened tiles can be taken up and new ones put in their place.

Finish for Plywood

Q. How should plywood be treated to bring out the grain and give a finished wax effect?

A. All plywood, except fir plywood, can be given a thin coat of white shellac thinned half-and-half with denatured alcohol. Then two, thin, even coats of paste wax are applied and when each coat is dry, it should be well rubbed. Another method is to finish with a penetrating wax or two coats of a top-quality, quick-drying varnish. If fir plywood is used it should be given a prime coat of a special kind of preparation which will "flatten" the grain of this particular kind of wood for a smooth finish. After the prime coat is dry, the wood can be finished with wax, varnish, shellac, paint or enamel. For the name of this preparation, inquire of the Architects Samples Exhibit, 101 Park Avenue, New York 17. (A non-commercial organization.)

Cleaning Upholstery

Q. How can I clean my curly frieze upholstered furniture?

A. If the fabric is color-fast, you can clean it with one of the upholstery shampoo preparations on sale at department and furniture stores.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

By The Associated Press

A small house with big rooms, this Colonial style home was designed by E. L. Baker, 1525 West High street, Lima, O., as his plan No. 705-B. With a full basement, this dwelling contains approximately 29,000 cubic feet. A center hall plan gives an efficient layout. A bay window in the dining room captures the morning sun with proper orientation of this plan on the lot. The designer suggests frame construction, wood shingle roof, oak floors and forced air heating, among major specifications.

Heating Experts List Five Vital Fuel Saving Factors

With the embargo this winter on fuel, Robert Shoe, the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau points out that one of the best places to save fuel is right where it is burned, namely in the boiler or furnace.

Five factors are involved in the saving of fuel at the point of combustion, the bureau advises:

1. Have the boiler, furnace, or burner in good operating condition. This means a checking by a heating contractor or oil burner service man to see that the boiler is clean and that the burner is properly adjusted for maximum efficiency. Furnaces and boilers should be cleaned at least once a year, if fired with oil or gas, and oftener if fired with coal.

2. Replace obsolete, fuel-wasting equipment. In many cases, when manually-fired heating plants were converted to automatic firing, the boilers or furnaces were not replaced. Many older units consume far more fuel than modern boiler-burner units. Replacement of such equipment by modern boilers designed especially for certain fuels is an important step in fuel conservation and will prove a profitable investment for the owner in the long run.

3. Insulation of the boiler, piping, tanks, or ducts. An example of the economies of insulation is the discovery at the University of Illinois where experiments in the I-B-R Research Home disclosed that insulation of the piping between the indirect water heat and the tank would save 20 per cent in fuel.

4. Draft. Good combustion depends on the proper regulation of the air-fuel mixture. The boiler and burner should be checked to be sure that the ratio of air to fuel is correct. Even in manually-fired equipment, fuel is wasted if there are air leaks around the firebox and clean-out. Chimney draft, too, should be checked.

5. Controls should be adjusted for automatic equipment. If the [illegible] manually-fired the instal[illegible] an automatically-operating control will prove an economy as well as a great convenience.

eserve Spirit That ade Nation Great, Is ll's Closing Message

By CORDELL HULL

pyright, 1948, by North American Newspaper Alliance)

INSTALLMENT XXXVI

nree-quarters century of my life I have seen this nation m a continental to a world power, with interests in every e globe.

e today powerful in arms and powerful in the cause of humanity. But with our great strength have come great ties. The heaviest of these, which we have accepted in of our power and duties, is that of providing our full share ship toward cooperation among nations for peace, justice, and progress.

been a popular view in supported by tradition, United States has noth- ear, that the future is assured, that our great resources and organizing ability guarantee our destiny, and that our institutions will endure forever. No belief could be more dangerous.

We have, in fact, reached the time when we would stop, look, and listen. We should analyze ourselves and our position in the world with sharp introspection.

Are the people of this generation better off than their predecessors of former generations? Science and invention have given them many more of the desirable items of enjoyment, and in this respect they are undoubtedly much better off. They have all sorts of new things to eat and wear, and amusements to follow, compared with the limited possessions and means to enjoy life in the past. But in certain other respects they are worse off. They suffer from a striking lack of a broad education, and of devotion to the spirit of liberty and law, and they fail to maintain the deep interest and keen alertness necessary for the proper conduct of public affairs.

ORGANIZED SOCIETY during the past generation has, in my opinion, deteriorated.

We cannot rest on past achievements and present possessions. All the liberties we have today came from resistance to tyranny, either domestic or foreign, and most of them were won by blood and iron. Liberty came through the efforts of those men and women who were willing to die for it. We are their heirs, and must be vigilant to guard our heritage.

Let us choose for our leaders men who know the needs of the people. Some of our leaders, like Jefferson, went into public life to promote democratic doctrines and to give the people their benefits. Jefferson cared not for power, still less for place or patronage for its own sake, and even tried to substitute Madison for himself as a candidate for the Presidency. Surely we have men today imbued with the same exalted spirit.

We have a desperate need for more religion and morality as the background for government. The religious and moral foundations for thought and conduct require strengthening here, as well as throughout the world. There is no higher civilizing influence than religious and moral concepts. Corruption and tyranny can be driven out of government only when these concepts give men the faculty to recognize such evils and the strength to eliminate them.

The states should exercise ceaseless vigilance to protect the civil rights of their citizens. The right of all citizens freely to vote should be guarded, and their pathway to the voting booth should not be obstructed.

I believe it vitally necessary that congress and the executive observe strict economy in government, and that the states, counties, and cities do likewise. In this modern world there is little regard for either public or private economy on the part of an increasing number of officials and individuals.

LET US ADHERE, as closely as developing conditions permit, to our time-honored policy of individual initiative and free enterprise. Government has an essential role of supervision and inspection to fill to ensure that free enterprise is truly free and fair, and the people as a whole are protected, but it must not kill the spirit that made our Nation great.

Congress and the executive have an inescapable responsibility to keep our foreign policy on a nonpartisan basis.

I continue to believe that the two-thirds requirement for senate consent to the ratification of treaties should be changed by Constitutional amendment to a simple majority.

The American people, congress, and the executive must keep sharp watch lest the United States return again to the dangerous policy of isolation. Two major wars within a generation should have convinced all Americans that we are an important part of the world, that conflict abroad cannot but affect us, and that our welfare, peace, and security are tied to those of other nations. We have a responsibility for leadership and cooperation which we cannot avoid, if we would.

In the past, until 1934, perhaps our most flagrant violation of our duties to the world was economic isolationism. High tariffs do not bring us prosperity. They do bring us unsaleable surpluses at home and the resentment of nations abroad.

FORMER SECRETARY OF STATE CORDELL HULL discusses passages in his memoirs with Andrew Berding, foreign affairs expert. Hull and Berding worked together for more than two years on the memoirs. They would first plan their work two or three weeks ahead. Their research assistants would cull out documents about a certain period and subject, Mr. Berding would select pertinent papers from Mr. Hull's files and then take down in shorthand Mr. Hull's recollections of what was behind the documents. With this raw material, Mr. Berding would start the actual writing of a chapter, conferring frequently with Mr. Hull about it. Some chapters were rewritten several times in order to make sure they reflected exactly what was in Mr. Hull's mind.

PRESIDENT WASHINGTON spoke against permanent alliances with other nations, although he countenanced alliances. We are now, however, a member of the United Nations, which is in the nature of an alliance against aggression. Let none of us be shocked by this fact of an alliance. It is not an alliance against a combination of other nations but against any aggressor. It is an alliance not for war but for peace.

The creation of the United Nations Organization, embracing all the peace-loving nations, was in my opinion a turning point in the political development of the world.

Let us not, however, expect the United Nations to perform a miracle. Its charter is a human instrument, not a perfect one. The Organization requires time, patience, and a spirit of cooperation among nations if it is to function effectively.

The United Nations deserves and must have the unwavering support of the American people. Let us not be discouraged over the dissensions voiced in the initial councils of the new organization. Let us not on the one hand insist that the United Nations cannot work and we must therefore return to nationalism and isolationism, nor on the other urge that the United Nations is inadequate and we must therefore replace it with a world government.

We should strive to promote the idea of universal reduction of armaments, with complete United Nations inspection in all countries to make sure it is carried out. A wild race of armaments, economic and military, is an indictment of civilization. Proponents of heavy armaments are playing with the lives and property of tens of millions of men, women, and children. But disarmament must be comparative, and we must never again permit the United States to decline to a level of relative military helplessness. Other nations, in looking at us as we explain our foreign policies, must still be able to see over our shoulders the symbols of our power.

WE AMERICANS need to practice moderation in our expressions of opinion concerning other nations. As a people we are too prone to condemn other nations and rulers, to apply epithets, to caricaturize, to ridicule. We forget that our sharp words are not buried in newspaper columns or lost on the rostrum or radio. They come to the knowledge of the governments and peoples they anathematize, they are reproduced and commented upon by the press and radio of those countries, which may not understand our freedom of criticism, and they hamper the conduct of our foreign relations. To the old rule that one should count ten before berating another individual I would add a new rule that we should count ten hours or ten days before berating another nation, and meantime we should try to ascertain the true and full facts of the event that seems to call for consideration.

This rule I would call to the particular attention of the minority groups in the United States, whether racial, national, or religious. The Constitution was designed to protect all the people, but especially minorities. Nevertheless, in recent years some of these groups, aided by the improvement of methods for diffusing information and propaganda, have raised a voice and exerted a pressure in foreign affairs far out of proportion to their numbers. These interfering minorities are most generally composed of or influenced by left wing or reactionary extremists and also by persons who have immigrated in recent years and are chronic agitators and advocates of ideas calculated to undermine both our political and our economic structure. On many critical occasions, when the international relations of our government require the most delicate and careful handling, supported by a unanimous and aggressive public opinion, some of these groups scatter poison or otherwise play havoc with them.

In the Western Hemisphere let us develop and expand the Good Neighbor Policy in all possible ways. The fruit we have gathered from that policy is sufficient warrant for the planting of further seed. In our time of need our friends to the South, with one exception, became our friends indeed. Let the Good Neighbor Policy become a permanent cornerstone of our foreign policy. In sowing a crop of cooperation in our own garden we can give the world an example of the highest type of political harvest.

WE SHOULD MAINTAIN forever the friendliest relations and the closest cooperation with the United Kingdom and the British Dominions, but with the proviso that this be not exclusive. Let us not be persuaded that a union of the English-speaking peoples is the cure-all for the ills of the world. Let us consult with other interested nations whenever we consult with Britain.

Despite the dangerous conduct of the Soviet Union in the last several years, let us follow in respect to her a policy of patience, combined with firmness, inspired by calm strength, and rooted in an unswerving determination that, so far as lies in our power, mankind shall at long last attain a just and peaceful world order. In dealing with the Soviet Union we must never waver in this determination, or give any evidence of weakness, or cease to insist that, although she is entitled to freedom from intervention in her domestic affairs by any other nation, her government has no right to force communism on other nations or to intervene in their domestic affairs in any other way.

During my years as secretary of state, we consistently pursued the broad policy of nonintervention and we lost no opportunity to condemn and oppose all practices in violation of that precious doctrine, whether these were conducted by Germany or Japan or the Soviet Union or any other country. We repeatedly emphasized to the Soviet government that its idea of penetrating into other countries by promoting within them subversive movements designed to supplant their established forms of government with Communist systems like its own, while at the same time claiming for the Soviet Union immunity from such intervention, was a hopelessly unsound and hazardous theory of international relations. No nation that had once dedicated itself to popular forms of government could tolerate indefinitely the enforced substitution for its free institutions of a system of tyranny, destitution, and lowering of all moral standards that are the inevitable concomitants of a police state. We repeatedly stressed our hope that the Soviet leaders would themselves in due course recognize this.

THE SOVEREIGN EQUALITY of all peaceful nations, large and small, and the right of each of them to freedom from intervention in its internal affairs, are among the cardinal principles of the United Nations, to which the Soviet Union, together with us and with more than 50 other nations, has pledged her solemn adherence. The faithful observance of these principles constitutes an indispensable foundation for international cooperation without which no nation can progress or

FILES GALION VOTE PETITION

Former City Employe Asks Referendum on Hiring of Safety-Service Head.

Special to The Star

GALION, March 6—John P. Drouth, former city sanitary officer took another step Friday in his fight to restrain the city from paying Safety-Service Director John F. Porter an $7,200 annual salary by filing a request for a referendum on the city ordinance covering Porter's office

The petition, filed with city auditor Gloyd Frye, bears 428 signatures, more than enough to insure its validity. State law requires signatures must total at least ten per cent of the votes cast at the last general election. In November, 3,004 votes were cast for the office of mayor.

The referendum request will be open for public inspection for ten days before being filed with the board of elections for inclusion on the November ballot.

His action was followed by a special meeting of city council Friday night at which time city solicitor George Davies was authorized to hire additional legal assistance if necessary to fight Drouth's move.

Already on tap is a hearing March 29 in Crawford county common pleas court on Drouth's request for an injunction restraining the city from paying Porter the salary set up by city council Feb. 3, when Porter was hired.

Drouth is a former sanitary officer for the city health department. He was active in the campaign of Dr. Hartmann for mayor following abolition of his office by the previous administration under former Mayor William Amann. Mayor Hartmann stated he had made no commitments concerning appointive positions prior to his election as mayor for a tenth term.

Meanwhile Porter, a graduate engineer, who came here from Troy, O., to take the safety-service director position under Dr. Hartmann continues to work without pay. Porter succeeded Kels Poister safety-service director and city engineer under Mayor Amann. Poister is now serving as city engineer.

feel secure. Much time, perhaps many years, of unremitting effort may be necessary before the Soviet leaders come to understand fully that the ways of cooperation with other nations are to their own country's benefit as well as to ours. However difficult and hopeless the task may on occasion appear to be, let us take this time, employing neither denunciation nor threats, but a friendly, honest, stalwart approach. Every feasible opportunity should be used to converse with the Soviet leaders, within the United Nations or wherever possible.

It may be that our efforts will fail and the leaders of Soviet Russia will fall into the same tragic error that has brought to their doom so many ancient and modern masters of police states. If that utter calamity should come to pass, let it not be said that the United States had neglected any honorable means to avert it. While keeping ourselves strong to face any eventuality, let us work unceasingly toward the end that the leaders of the Russian people and we may ultimately come to see eye to eye on the values of human freedom and on the preciousness of enduring peace based on justice and fair dealing.

My 12 years as secretary of state were a difficult period in which to live. It was an epoch filled with conflicts, tragedies, and seeming impossibilities. One could not come throught it, however, without feeling its vibrant pulsations. And it has left the nations of the world with an opportunity for advancement such as they have never had before, such as they may never have again.

BUT OUR NATION and all nations, including especially our major allies in the recent death struggle against the forces of tyranny, would merely deceive themselves if they failed to realize that they are facing the supreme crisis of all ages. If they resolve that the forces of peace, order, and civilization shall proceed unceasingly with the task of restoring their economic health and solidifying their political and moral strength, they will thereby become powerful enough to preserve the peace, freedom, and culture of the world. On the other hand, if some nations or peoples persist in destructive policies and methods calculated seriously to cripple or shatter this great world undertaking, the human race may yet be dragged down to unimaginably low levels of barbarism.

All peace-seeking nations should make every effort, without ceasing, to prevail on one another to do teamwork, on a basis of fair-dealing, equality, mutual respect, and nonintervention in one another's affairs—with understanding and trust but without favoritism or appeasement—toward the attainment of the basic principles of international relations to which they committed themselves in accepting the Charter of the United Nations. The one inescapable duty and responsibility of all nations and peoples is to maintain and develop the United Nations as an international organization capable of establishing real peace and keeping such peace permanently. It is well nigh axiomatic that all countries will receive equal and incalculable benefits from a faithful performance of their United Nations duties, but a bottomless pit is liable to open in the pathway of nations failing in such performance. It is beyond any doubt to the best interest of each and all to join together in perpetuating the world organization and in making it truly effective.

I conclude these Memoirs with the abiding faith that our destiny as a nation is still before us, not behind us. We have reached maturity, but at the same time we are a youthful nation in vigor and resources, and one of the oldest nations in the unbroken span of our form of government. The skill, the energy, the strength of purpose, and the natural wealth that made this Nation great are still with us, augmented and heightened. If we are willing from time to time to stop and appreciate our past, appraise our present and prepare for our future, I am convinced that the horizons of achievement still stretch before us like the unending Plains. And no achievement can be higher than that of working in harmony with other nations so that the lash of war may be lifted from our backs and a peace of lasting friendship descend upon us.

Newspaper Story At Ohio Theater

The story of a stubborn newspaper reporter and his fight against overwhelming odds to track down and uncover new and indisputable evidence on a youth's innocence, or guilt, is told in the film, "Call Northside 777" which is now playing through Monday at the Ohio theater. Starred in the production are James Stewart, Lee J. Cobb, Helen Walker and Richard Conte.

Taken from a real life drama, it is the widely-known story of a young Polish-American who was railroaded to Illinois State Prison in 1932 on a 99-year stretch for a crime he never committed. It tells how the newspaper reporter interviews the mother of the boy who has faith in the innocence of her son, becomes convinced himself that the man is innocent and then runs down the real truth and exonerates the innocent man.

Lee J. Cobb plays the city editor, James Stewart the reporter, Helen Walker, the wife of the reporter, and Richard Conte, the convicted man.

Starting Tuesday will be the technicilor production, "An Ideal Husband," based on Oscar Wilde's famed comedy hit. It will be shown for seven days.

Starring Paulette Goddard with Michael Wilding and Diana Wynyard, it tells the gay story of beautiful Mrs. Cheveley, played by Paulette Goddard, who throws high society into a dither when she embarks on a ruthless campaign of blackmail aimed at pushing a shady financial deal through Parliament, and on forcing one of London's most fabulous bachelors into a trip to the alter with her.

Love's Perilous Path

By ADELE GARRISON

THERE was a familiar obstinacy in Jim's face, as the voiced his determination to take Katie away from the farmhouse because of her latest tantrum. Quiet, faithful, most competent in his work, of almost unfailing good nature, he has what my little mother used to call a "streak of iron" somewhere inside him. And when it appears, neither Katie, nor anybody else can do anything with him.

I knew that I must "walk warily and with an inward sigh for my fast vanishing twenty minutes, I looked at Jim, debating which sort of approach would have the best chance of denting the armor he had drawn around himself.

"Jim," I said at last. "You say you love Katie, and that she's a good wife except when she gets these tantrums. Will you believe me when I tell you that I love Katie, too, as much as if she were a near relative and that I know what a good worker—and friend—she is, even when she does have a tantrum?"

The lines were not quite so deep in his face as I finished, and his eyes were less tortured. But they were still stubborn.

"She wasn't a good worker today," he said, "She left you right in the lurch."

"But she didn't, Jim," I said triumphantly. "That's just the point. He looked at me with a plain doubt of my sanity in his eyes.

"I don't get you," he said. "She wasn't here when you came, but upstairs acting like a wild woman. And she left the dinner she was cooking—"

He broke off abruptly as I gave a little laugh which I followed with quick emphatic speech.

"She didn't leave her dinner," I said, "until every last dish was prepared, and put either in the warming oven or over hot water as they always are when she has to serve dinner, and does not know the time it has to be ready. Even her bisquits were in the pans, ready to put into the oven, and the coffee all measured out for the pot. The two tables were set to the last detail.

"Either Mrs. Ticer or I could have finished the dinner with no trouble whatever, if she had not come back, but she would have been heart-broken if she could not have gotten back into her kitchen again, and served the delicious dinner she had prepared with so much care and work."

"You mean," he said slowly "that she didn't mean a word of that fuss she was making, just wanted to get you upstairs so that she could tell off Mrs. Ticer to you? She was play-acting all the while she was going on like that?"

"She thought she meant every word of it," I told him, "while she was saying it. But remember she had done every bit of her work beforehand, and if she hadn't she would have postponed her tantrum until she had completed it. Her work comes first with Katies always.

"Well! I'll be damned," Jim blurted out, then crimsoned.

"I'm sorry, Mis' Graham," he said, and I smiled at him.

"That's perfectly all right, Jim," said, heartened by the look, something like reluctant admiration, that had come into his eyes when I had told him of Katie's completed work. Then the look faded as quickly as it had come, but the sterness remained.

"You can't stand play-acting like that," he said, "and it's likely to grow worse as she gets older, although she hasn't had a spell before this for a long time."

"And it's going to be a much longer one before she has another," he said. "I think I frightened her thoroughly before I got through talking to her."

"I'm glad you did," he said, "but that doesn't change things. I've got to go up and tell her what I've decided."

"Go up and tell her," I repeated with another smile. "Where do you think she is, Jim?"

Tournament Play Shows Signs of Tightening

Tonight's Spotlight on Hamilton's Third Attempt To Defeat Middletown

By The United Press

COLUMBUS, March 6—Tournament play in both class A and B levels showed signs of tightening up as teams moved into quarter and semi-final play tonight.

The game of the evening will feature the third try this season of Hamilton's Big Blue to whip Middletown, undefeated state champion, at Dayton.

The basketball fates, fickle gals that they are, will laugh out loud tonight if the Big Blue pulls the trick, because the situation was reversed last year.

Last season Middletown had lost twice to Hamilton, only to whip the Big Blue in district tournament play and go on to the championship. This year Hamilton lost twice to Middletown during regular season play, one time by the bare margin of two points.

Portsmouth Meets Lancaster

In another top game tonight Portsmouth and Lancaster, favored teams in the Athens tourney, will go at it hammer and tongs. Portsmouth holds a 13-5 record to the Golden Gale's 18-3.

Last night in class A play, Hamilton Catholic's Rams had an easy time with Greenville, 46-23; Columbus West whipped Linden McKinley, 50-37; Findlay rolled over weak Kenton, 71-28; Steubenville's Big Red knocked off Mingo, 53-38; and Mansfield had a hard time with Port Clinton, 52-44.

Findlay, undefeated in season play and considered Middletown's chief challenger, was lethargic in the first half before eliminating Kenton. Bucyrus will tackle Wapakoneta tonight in an effort to make the semi-finals.

Mansfield Gains Semi-Finals

Mansfield, top seeded at Sandusky, gained the semi-finals with its victory over Port Clinton. Bellevue made another semi-final spot with its 62-45 victory over Tiffin Calvert.

The other two semi-final berths will be at stake tonight when Ashland will meet Fremont Ross, and Mansfield Madison, the tournament darkhorse, will clash with Shelby.

At Euclid Shore all four seeded teams advanced to the quarter finals. Euclid Central was the last to qualify with a thrilling 44-34 victory over Shaker Heights. Shaker Heights held a 32-29 advantage after three quarters of play.

Tonight Cleveland Heights, Lake Erie league leaders, will meet Painesville and Euclid Shore will face Ashtabula, last year's runnerup in the state finals.

At Toledo, DeVilbiss defeated Macomber, 57-46 and Whitmer nosed out Libbey, 45-37. Central Catholic, Toledo city champion, will tackle Woodward and Sylvania will take on Waite in quarter final games Tuesday.

Class A action will resume tonight at Youngstown when veteran Canton South, which changed its name from Canton Township after the tourney got under way, will play Youngstown South. Youngstown East will meet Alliance, upsetter of Salem, and Girard will collide with Louisville.

Training Camp High Spots

By The United Press

LAKELAND, Fla., March 6 — The major leagues' new rule forbidding a team to begin spring training before March 1 was severely criticized today by Manager Steve O'Neill of the Detroit Tigers.

"We start our exhibition game schedule tomorrow, and we are asking our pitchers to be ready," he said. "That despite the fact that they've had less than a week to limber up muscles that have tightened up all fall and winter. It's the first rule that should be changed this year."

The Bengal boss named Dizzy Trout, Virgil Trucks and Art Houtteman to pitch against the Cincinnati Reds at Tampa tomorrow.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — The long holdout of southpaw Harry Brecheen was at an end today after the star pitcher agreed to unrevealed terms after a long conference with St. Louis Cardinal President Bob Hannegan.

TUCSON, Ariz. — Bob Lemon and Al Gettel were scheduled to pitch for the Cleveland Indians today as they opened their exhibition schedule with a game against the New York Giants here.

Manager Lou Boudreau announced that Al Clark, obtained from the Yankees, would start in left field in place of ailing Dale Mitchell.

PHOENIX, Ariz. — The New York Giants will throw a lineup that includes only three regulars against the Cleveland Indians in the opening exhibition game today.

The only first-stringers on the fire will be Johnny Mize, Willard Marshall, and Jack Lohke. Two others, Bill Rigney and Walker Cooper, will play against the Indians tomorrow.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—With first-stringer George McQuinn still a holdout, Manager Bucky Harris of the New York Yankees said today he would alternate rookies Steve Souchock and Joe Collins at first base during the Yanks' first exhibition games.

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, D. R. — President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers went into conference with Manager Leo Durocher here today concerning personal problems. Rickey arrived last night.

Rio Does It Again— This Time 134 to 39

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 6—Little Rio Grande claimed the all-time Ohio college basketball scoring record today. No one was arguing with the Red Men, either.

Coach Robert M. Stoneburner's cagers went berserk last night and smothered Kentucky Christian college (Grayson, Ky.), 134-39.

Forward Newt Oliver, fifth high scoring small college player in the nation (on average points per game), netted 33 points. But—he wasn't high point man. His colleague at forward, Ted McHenry, hit 35 points.

"The boys were just hot," Stoneburner said afterwards. "They must have made at least 85 per cent of their shots from the field."

In other games, Youngstown's Penguins upset Western Reserve, 68-51, and Bliss College of Columbus over came Steubenville, 60-52.

It was the second time Rio Grande topped 100 points this year. On Jan. 26, the Red Men outlasted Wilberforce Church, 118-116, in three overtime periods.

Martel To Meet Stone's Sunday for Loop Title

Martel Elevators romped over Stone's Grill Thursday night at the Y. M. C. A., 45-27, to come off with the second round championship in the Thursday Y-league, and to place themselves in a position to battle the Stone's combine again on Sunday afternoon to establish the league champion. Stone's won the first round.

Jumping to a 12-4 first quarter lead, Martel's cagers kept the pace throughout the second period and added 10 while limiting the Stone's crew to only six. Going into the third quarter on the short end of a 22-10 count, Stone's ran hot in outscoring Martel 11-10, but fell off again in the final stanza when they were able to garner only six while Martel was getting 13. Freet was high for Martel with 19 points, while Busler took game honors with a total of 22 points.

The championship play-off will get underway at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the Y. M. C. A.

CARDINGTON LOSES TO GROVE CITY, 55-49

A Grove City freeze in the fourth quarter nipped Cardington's hopes for a successful plunge into the Central district class B basketball tournament at Westerville last night and they came off on the short end of a 55-49 count.

Going into the last quarter, the lead in the first game of the day's play had changed hands 11 times and the fray had been deadlocked on 12 occasions, but the Franklin county Greyhounds spurted to a ten point lead and froze the game out to take their nineteenth win in 25 starts.

It was the Pirates seventh loss in 25.

Bill Maxwell of the Morrow club and Carl Patzer of the winners each meshed 21 points, Dewey Yake collected 12 for the Pirates.

LESNEVICH KO'S FOX IN 1:58 AT GARDEN

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 6 — The new Gus Lesnevich, a so-so boxer turned ring tiger, is the hottest thing around the fight game.

At the age of 32 when most fighters are looking for the carpet slippers, the durable light heavyweight king can write his own ticket for the future. He used to be a hit-and-get-away guy. Now he pegs bombs, righthanded.

There are rumors he may go to London to pick up some loose change after his explosive first round knockout of Philadelphia Billy Fox in 1:58 last night in Madison Square Garden.

Feller Latest Addition To Tribe's Ailing List

By The Associated Press

TUCSON, Ariz., March 6 — Three Cleveland Indians, including Rapid Robert Feller, were added to the Tribe's ailing list today as the training squad prepared to pry the lid from the Grapefruit league season against the New York Giants.

Feller gashed the finger of his pitching hand yesterday and will be sidelined for about four days. The fireballer suffered the cut when he used a razor blade to sever ropes from his golf bag.

Others sidelined were relief ace Ed Klieman and Coach George Susce. Outfielder Dale Mitchell also has been out of the training lineup with a sprained back.

Klieman was ordered to bed for several days because of a streptococcus throat infection. Susce suffered a severe bruise on his left arm when he stopped a line drive off Joe Gordon's bat.

The pitching lineup for the Giants was announced by Manager Lou Boudreau as Bob Lemon, Al Gettel and rookie Mike Garcia.

A week's workouts with the Indians have brought Hank Greenberg no nearer a solution of his personal baseball dilemma.

The former great first baseman and homerun knocker is thinking seriously of retiring from the game for a year just to see what happens. He still firmly intends to have his own big league club one of these days.

Cincy Reds Schedule Intra-Squad Game

By The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla., March 6 — The Kellys tear into the Pages and vice versa—here today, weather permitting.

The Cincinnati Reds' first intra-squad game of the training season will be masterminded by Coaches George Kelly and Phil Page.

Three pitchers will see action for each team.

Kelly nominated Tommy Hughes, Bucky Walters and Herman Wehmeier. Page put the finger on Harry Gumbert, Johnny Hetki and Walker Cress.

Hughes, Wehmeier and Cress played in foreign uniforms last season.

Hughes won four, lost 11 games, for the Philadelphia Phils. Wehmeier, a Cincinnati boy, compiled a 15-8 record for Syracuse of the International league. Cress, who towers six-five, won 15, dropped five games for New Orleans of the Southern association.

Rain halted the big squad's afternoon workout here yesterday.

The Reds open their Grapefruit league schedule here Sunday, meeting the Detroit Tigers. Idle Monday, they engage the Philadelphia Phils here the next four days.

New Class B Champion Due As Leavittsburg Beats Columbiana

By FRITZ HOWELL

Ohio Associated Press Sports Editor

COLUMBUS, O., March 6—Ohio will crown a new basketball king of its 1947 class B high schools April 3.

This was assured last night as Columbiana's Clippers, champs of the crown a year ago, were crowded off the tournament trail by Leavittsburg, 41 to 38.

Columbiana's abdication cleared the way for a free-for-all championship scramble, and highly-rated contenders continued to fall by the wayside as Johnny-come-lately powerhouses rolled over them.

Most of last night's sectional surprises came in the big class B sector, the 252 class A clubs running more or less true to form.

Among the class B victims were Carbon Hill, which saw its 22-game winning streak ruined by Crooksville, 46-34; Rockford, winner of 23 of 24, blasted 40-32 by a Haviland club it had beaten previously; Broadway, winner of 19 or 21, which bowed to Amanda 54-37, and Mantua township holder of a 17-2 mark, smothered under a 70-23 avalanche by Akron Ellet.

Rockford's demise took the two top teams out of the class B event at Celina, Middlepoint's fine club with 21 straight conquests having been ousted Tuesday by Delphos St. John, 44-39. Carbon Hill was the fifth undefeated squad trampled in class B since the tournaments got under way.

CALEDONIA, ROXY WIN PROSPECT GAMES

Caledonia Merchants downed the Ashley Independents, 48-44, and Roxy Grill came from behind to defeat Commercial Steel, 78-61, in the Prospect Invitational basketball tournament.

Gene Freet paced the Caledonia cagers with 15 points in their tight squeek with Ashley. Caledonia, trailing 32-26 in the first half, rallied in the fourth period when they dropped 16 points through the webbing to overcome a 39-30 deficit and cop the win.

Commercial Steel had all the better of their game with Roxy in the first half as they led 32-21 at half-time, but they rapidly fell behind in the final quarter when Roxy's was fortified by Bill Blair. Sherry Rowland and Reggie Moncur who arrived from Ohio Wesleyan in time to score 15, 26 and 23 respectively. Roxy scored 43 points in the final frame.

Frank and Hord were top scorers for Commercial. Frank taking game honors with 29 points, and Hord racking 16 to place second for the Steelers. Rowland scored 29 points for O. W. U. against their freshmen team before coming to Prospect, and made 26 in the last half for Roxy, for an evenings total of 55 points.

SPORTS ROUNDUP
by Hugh S. Fullerton Jr.

LAKELAND, Fla., March — Harry Heilmann, who should know something about hitting because he was one of baseball's greatest hitters, heaved a sigh as he glanced across the Detroit Tigers training field . . . "Wouldn't it be nice to be as young as he is and have his ability?" He asked . . . The "he" in question was John Groth, a 21-year-old outfielder whose hitting has the entire Tiger camp buzzing . . . Groth is a Chicago boy.

JOHNNY NEUN, Cincinnati manager, is a lot more relaxed and talkative now than he was a year ago as a "freshman." "Last year I had to experiment," says John. "Now I know who the players are, I can do a lot more concentrated teaching."

PEERING FROM behind the batting cage while Big Hen Sauer blasted a couple of pitches over the fence at the Reds' practice field base the other day, President Warren Giles shook his head and remarked: "I'll have to get some far-sighted glasses to see where they light."

Other electrical demonstrations include Stroboscopic light and methods of controlling electricity by light, sound, and approach of an object.

During the demonstration of ultra-violet light, Mr. Glesing and his assistant, S. L. Roth, focus the largest ultra violet light in the world on their audience. This 1,200 watt violet light is so powerful that two filters are required to make it safe for an audience to view. These two filters remove harmful ultra violet rays from the quartz light source and when played on persons in the audience, teeth, jewelry, fingernails and women's hair decorations glow with a ghostly intensity.

A high point of the exhibit is a demonstration of the first and only sun motor in the world, which runs on electricity made entirely from light.

A total of 33 pieces of electrical equipment, hand built at a cost of $25,000, are employed in the demonstration.

in securing delivery of fuel oil when city council stepped in and solved the problem.

The city bought and installed a storage tank for the project, going into the oil business on a non-profit basis so that veterans' families would not be without heat during zero weather.

Grateful letters received by Mayor Harry L. Dowler and council members and read at a meeting of council, repaid the city fathers for their consideration.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY

By AP Newsfeatures

LOU COSTELLO, born March 6, 1908, was son of a manufacturer. As a youth he was laborer, extra and stunt man in Hollywood. The team of Abbott and Costello was formed in New York burlesque in 1932. Later the partners won acclaim on the Kate Smith radio hour. Then they went back to Hollywood to develop their own brand of daffiness in the films. Fame surprised Costello who said, "It's the same old stuff we've always been doing."
